Abstract Much has changed in antenatal, perinatal and postpartum care in recent decades, and many of the changes have arisen from a questioning - and in some cases discarding - of many of the interventions which had previously been considered appropriate or even essential.

The first step in providing maternal and newborn services during the COVID-19 pandemic is to determine pregnancy status. Once a woman discovers she is pregnant, she will either contact a Community Health Worker (CHW) to provide an antenatal care (ANC) assessment or visit a health center facility directly to confirm her pregnancy and receive ANC.

The term perinatal depression (PD) encompasses both antenatal and postnatal depression. Dr Lumu adds that women who have experienced PD in their past pregnancies, are at risk of having PD in their next pregnancies. “If a mother has had a previous history of PD, it is essential that they inform their healthcare provider.
