37Signals, a software company. I like 37Signals because they're straightforward, even pithy, and because founder Jason Fried has some right-on things to say about business culture, such as the stupidity of insisting that all workers come to an office and stay for eight hours, whether they are productive there or not.

But Jason Fried author of the book Rework and founder of the software company Basecamp says the hype around entrepreneurship and startups are all nonsense. Starting a business doesn't need to be intimidated to start a business you don't need to self-identify as an entrepreneur and you don't need to have the desire to build a billion-dollar Empire in fact it's awesome to just want a small side of it.
